Decision: Major revisions required

The study "Contradiction : Inclusion of Multiple Dispute Settlement Clauses in the Agreement" explains dispute resolution clauses in Indonesia . It effectively sets the stage for your research , outlining its purpose and significance . However , here are some suggestions for improvement:

1. While the abstract is informative , it could benefit from a slightly clearer structure to make it easier for readers to grasp the key aspects of your study quickly.
2. Ensure that the keywords listed at the end of the abstract are reflective of the key concepts and terms discussed in your study.
3. You mention that your study aims to examine dispute resolution clauses , but it would be helpful to specify what kind of agreements these clauses are typically found in. Are you focusing on commercial contracts , legal documents , or a broader range of agreements ? Clarifying this in the abstract would provide more context.
4. While you mention that you use a qualitative approach and content analysis , it would be beneficial to briefly explain why you chose these methods and how they contribute to your study. This would help readers understand the rigor of your research.
5. The study mentions the significance of your research but doesn 't delve into specific implications or potential applications of your findings . Consider briefly mentioning the practical relevance or real - world applications of your study 's outcomes.

Reviewer -BDecision: Major revisions required

This is a well-written study. However, incorporating the following improvements would make this study more concise and reader-friendly while providing a clearer understanding of your research.

1. The literature review section provides a detailed overview of dispute resolution in common law and civil law countries, followed by an examination of the legal framework for dispute resolution in Indonesia. Overall, it offers a comprehensive and informative review. However, it is quite extensive, covering different aspects and countries. It could benefit from a more structured organization. Consider grouping the information under clear subheadings, such as "Dispute Settlement in Common Law Countries" and "Dispute Settlement in Civil Law Countries," to make it easier for readers to follow.
2. Ensure that you provide proper in-text citations for the sources you reference. This is important for academic integrity and allows readers to locate the original sources for more information. Also, ensure that your citations follow a consistent format throughout the literature review. For example, you may use APA, A, or another citation style, but it should be consistent for all sources.
3. After presenting the legal frameworks in common law and civil law countries, it would be beneficial to connect these findings to the specific legal framework in Indonesia. This can help readers understand the context and relevance of your research.
4. Consider including a brief discussion or synthesis of the information presented in this section. You can highlight key similarities and differences between dispute resolution mechanisms in different countries and how these insights relate to your study in Indonesia.
5. When discussing dispute resolution in Indonesia, consider adding information about the local context, such as cultural or societal factors that may influence the choice of dispute resolution methods.
