Reviewer- A

Decision: Major revisions required

Your paper Indonesian Land Rights for Individual Limited Companies provides a comprehensive overview of the subject matter and purpose of your research, but there are some areas where it can be improved for clarity and reader engagement:

1. While the introduction provides an excellent background on the topic of land rights in Indonesia and its complexities, it can be a bit lengthy. Consider summarizing key points more concisely and transition into the main focus of your research more smoothly. The primary goal of your research is not explicitly stated. It's essential to clearly outline your research objectives or questions in the paper so that readers immediately understand what the study aims to achieve.
2. You mention that data was collected from primary and secondary sources, and content analysis was performed. However, it would be beneficial to briefly explain how these sources were selected and the approach you took to analyze the data. A sentence about the methodology can help readers understand your research process.
3. In your last paragraph, you briefly touch on the potential impact of your research on economic development. Consider expanding on this significance. Explain how your research findings might be applied in practice and why they are important for policy-makers, businesses, or the broader Indonesian community.
4. When you mention specific studies or authors, it's helpful to provide citations or references in the paper. This adds credibility to your work and allows readers to explore these sources further if they wish.
5. While the paper provides a good amount of information, it can be organized more clearly. Consider breaking it into sections or paragraphs, each focusing on one aspect, such as the background, objectives, methodology, significance, and key findings. This will make it easier for readers to follow your argument. Ensure that the paper is concise. While it's important to provide necessary information, aim to do so as efficiently as possible.

Decision: Major revisions required

I have carefully reviewed your research paper and would like to commend you for your efforts in conducting this study. Your research addresses an important issue in the field, and the methodology employed is robust. I found the paper well-structured and the analysis comprehensive. However, there are some significant areas that require attention.

1. Think about your target audience. Ensure that your paper is accessible to both experts in the field and those who may not be familiar with the specifics of land rights in Indonesia. Balance the use of technical terms with explanations where needed.
2. Maintain consistency in terminology and the use of abbreviations. For example, you mention "UUPA" as the Basic Agrarian Law; consider using the full term upon the first mention and then use the abbreviation consistently.
3. The literature review contains a substantial amount of information and citations. It would be helpful to reorganize it into subsections or thematic groups to make it easier for the reader to follow.
4. While you've touched on the international context of land rights, it would be beneficial to provide more critical analysis and discussion of the key findings, insights, or controversies from these studies. This can help the reader understand the broader implications and debates.
5. The section on challenges faced by individual limited companies in Indonesia is informative. However, it might benefit from a summary or a more concise presentation of these challenges. You can then explore how your research addresses or contributes to the understanding of these challenges.
